the Chinese Authorities were not in any way. disposed to interfere with the plunderers of the vessel, and probably they had good reasons for looking leniently upon their doings. A good round bribe to underlings in such cases has often had a marvellous effect in shutting the Celestial eye to peocadilloes such as plundering wrecks, and it is probable that the officials at Foochow would consider it far too great a departure from recognised traditions to interfere needlessly with any such little innocent diversions. What need could there be for such interference so long as they know that they will not incur, any serious responsibility for their negligones? At most they may have to answer a dispatch or two from the Consuls with the full knowledge that the affair will drop in due time. Under such circumstances they are naturally little disposed to move against the wreckers, whose weaknesses as a fule, they look upon with marked com-

In the face of these distinct treaty obligations; with European built gunbouts actually in port, the Foochow authorities did absolutely nothing to prevent the vesse being plundered. "Not merely," says the protest by the Foochow Chamber, "did the authorities allow the wreck to become the property of a number of pirates, but no stops whatever appear to have been taken by them for the recovery of the property so plundered." According to the reply from the Consul, it had been reported to him that the local authorities had made a fresh seizure of Silk and Tea that had "been taken out of the Canton or picked up when floating near the wreck." No doubt this tardy action has been brought about by their getting wind of the remonstrances which were about to be made; and they will of course endeavour to show by this that they have done all that they are called upon to do by the treaty. But this obviously fails as an answer, as although it forms some sort of a compliance with Art.

"There was no need to encourage the red-eyed 'Physic' (the dog); he was too enger for the fray. He did not bark, but he was freezied with passion to that degree that tears trickled down his blant nose, and his gasping became each moment more shrill and hesterical. He needed no urging on for the first 'round,' at all events. As soon as the umpire called Let go. the dirty, glaring, furious brute sprang forward with an impetuoeity that caused the last link of its chain to click with a ringing sound against the staple which beld it. The dwarf, bowever, was not to be stormed and defeated all in a moment. Once the ghastly fight began, there was a dire fascination it it; and I now noted closely the combat. The man was on all-fours when the words 'Lot go were attered, and making accurate allowance for the length of the dog's chain, be srobed his back catwise, so as just to escape its fangs, and fetched it a blow on the grown of its bend that brought it almost to its knees. The dog's recovery, however, was instantaneous, and before red trickling. He grinned scornfully, and sucked the place; but there was tremendous excitement among the bull-dog's backers, who clapped their hands with delight, rejoicing in the honour of first blood. The bairy dwarf was still smiling, however, and while Dan'l held his dog, preparatory to letting it go for Round 2, be was actually provoking it as much as he could, bissing at it, and presenting towards it the bleeding arm. The animal, flushed possibly with his first success, made for its opponent in a sudden lesp, but the dwarf leapt forward too, and smote the bull-dog such a tremendous blow under the ear ne to roll it completely over, evidently bewildering it for a moment, and causing it to bleed freely, to the frantic joy of the friends of the man benet. But they in turn were made to look serious, for with astonishing energy Pbysio turned about, and with a dash was again at the dwarf, and this time contrived to fix its teeth in one of his hairy arms, a terrible gash appearing as the man snatohed the limb out of bie ravenous jaws. The buil-dog was licking his lips, and had fewer tears in his eyes as his master drew him back. As for the Dwarf, he retired to his corner for a what of brandy and a momenta comforting with the towel. He was ready and smiling again, however, for Round 3, and this time it was a fight in carnest, the dog worrying the men, and the man dealing it terrific blows on the ribs and on the head with those elodgehammer fists, till in the end both the mun's arms were bleeding and a horribly cheerful business was going on balind the ropes at 2 w Ohma and Japan Marine Insurance—Tis. 85 1 on Physic. By the time Round 10 was concluded, the bull-dog's bend was swelled much beyond its accustomed size; it bad lost two feeth, and one of its eyes was en tirely shut up; while as for the dwarf, his fists, as well as his arms, were recking. and his bideous face was ghastly pal with rage and despair of victory. Fate was kind to him, however. In Round 11 the bull-dog came on fresh and feaming with awful perciatence of fury, but with desporate strongth the dwarf dealt bim a tremendous blow under the chip, and with each effect that the dog was dashed against the wall, where, despite all its master could do for it, for the space of one minute it lay still, and the wretch who had so disgraced what aspect of humanity was in him was declared the victor.
